Do you know what your credit report says about you?

Whether you are in a personal credit crunch or feel like you have it all together, you should know what your credit report says about you. Now more than ever employers, as well as creditors, are looking at your credit report to learn about you. Looking for a job? Potential employers may request permission to pull your credit report – be prepared!

Personal Credit Review and Cash Flow Session

During this individual review with a Certified Credit Report Reviewer, you will learn what your credit report says about you, how to address any negative issues on your report, and how to raise or maintain your credit score. We will discuss your household cash flow and work on ways to make sure more is coming in than is going out. Start the New Year off right with a personalized action plan to manage your credit and your household cash flow.

Schedule your appointment now and receive our special rate
